Brittanie Browning focuses her practice on litigation and appellate matters. She guides clients through all stages of litigation from pre-litigation matters until completion up to and including appeal. Her civil litigation experience includes drafting pleadings, motions, and discovery. She is experienced in guiding clients through preparation for questioning at deposition and trial. Brittanie routinely conducts and defends depositions. She has successfully argued dispositive motions before state courts on behalf of her clients. Brittanie litigates in various forums including alternative dispute resolution such as mediation and arbitration.

Brittanie has handled multiple appeals at the state and federal levels including advising clients on the appellate process. She has successfully crafted arguments and briefed issues at both the state and federal appellate courts. Earlier in her career, Brittanie worked as an Assistant Attorney General for the State of Georgia in the Elections, Education, Local Government, and Judiciary section. In that role, she advocated for her clients by presenting cases in evidentiary hearings before administrative law judges.

Currently, Brittanie focuses her practice on insurance coverage issues and insurance litigation.
