

In The News

Akerman Represents QBex Computadores SA in $100 Million Suit Against Intel Corp. Over Faulty Smartphone Chips, Fortune Reports

June 13, 2017

Akerman is representing Brazilian electronics brand QBex Computadores SA (QBex) in a $100 million lawsuit against Intel Corporation (Intel). Filed in California federal court, the action charges that Intel provided Qbex with faulty microprocessors for its smartphone line, which caused phones to overheat, among other dangerous consequences. Luis A. Perez, co-chair of the Latin America & The Caribbean Practice, is leading the Akerman team representing QBex, which includes Darryl R. Graham, Mark Riera and Francisco A. Rodriguez. The case was reported by top national and technology publications, including Fortune.com, EETimes, ExtremeTech, Law360 and Yahoo.com, among many others.

Fortune.com: Brazilian Electronics Seller Sues Intel over Overheating Phones

inshorts: Brazil Firm Sues Intel for \$100 MN over Overheating Phones

EETimes: Intel Chip Defects Cause Cell Phone Overheating, Brazil Dealers Claim \$100 Million

ExtremeTech: Intel Sued for Allegedly Defective, Exploding Phones

Library of Smart Investors: Intel Corporation \(NASDAQ:INTC\) Sued by Brazilian Firm Qbex Computadores Due to Overheating Phones

Related People

Darryl R. Graham
Luis A. Perez

Related Work

Latin America and the Caribbean
Litigation

Related Offices

Los Angeles
Miami

*Law360: Brazilian Smartphone Maker Seeks $100M
For Faulty Chips*