Akerman Partner Tamara Malvin Appointed to Emerging Leaders of Gaming Alumni Advisory Board

July 11, 2022

Top 100 U.S. law firm Akerman LLP today announced litigation partner Tamara Malvin has been appointed by Emerging Leaders of Gaming (ELG), the next-generation leadership development program organized by The Innovation Group, to its inaugural Alumni Advisory Board.

The ELG Alumni Advisory Board, made up of 14 past “ELG 40 Under 40” honorees, was created to identify and prioritize the needs of the ELG community; develop a pipeline of emerging leaders; and bring additional structure and strategy to its efforts.

Malvin, a Litigation partner based in Fort Lauderdale, primarily represents U.S. businesses and individuals in gaming and hospitality, as well international entities when they are sued in the United States. She routinely advises gaming, casino, and resorts, hotel operators on regulatory and other operational concerns, and manages litigation and appellate matters that arise on their behalf.

Malvin’s clients also seek her counsel outside the courtroom to help navigate industry-specific laws, regulations, and government agencies, particularly with respect to commercial gaming, pari-mutuel operations, sports betting, online gaming, sweepstakes, and contests.
