Martin Dix will speak on a panel titled, “Establishing a Legally Compliant Referral Network” at the National Association Specialty Pharmacies (NASP) 2022 Annual Meeting & Expo. The panel will pivot to a discussion of the types of relationships that are legally permissible and those that should be avoided. Examples of relationships to be discussed include (i) working with physicians in clinical studies; (ii) entering into Medical Director Agreements with physicians; (iii) sponsoring physicians as speakers; (iv) entering into preferred provider arrangements with hospitals and long term care facilities; (v) providing value-added services to patients; and (vi) joint ownership of a pharmacy by one or more physicians and pharmacists.

The NASP 2022 Annual Meeting & Expo will provide comprehensive information regarding all aspects of specialty pharmacy, including the evolution of the market, impact of specialty pharmacy on patients, and national legislative and regulatory policy.
