Akerman Hosts Exclusive Book Signing with Rick Spees, Lawyer and Author of Satirical “Capitol Gains”

September 26, 2022

On Thursday, September 29, top 100 U.S. law firm Akerman LLP will host a reception and an exclusive book signing with Government Affairs and Public Policy partner Rick Spees, author of the satirical “Capitol Gains.” The event will feature a short reading and discussion between Spees and Washington Lawyer reporter, Jeremy Conrad.

This invitation-only event will be held in Akerman’s Washington, D.C. office. Cocktails and hors d’oeuvres will be served at the reception and guests are encouraged to bring their own book for signing.

Written with knowledge and insights from Spees’ four decades experience as a public policy lawyer and Beltway insider, the new novel gives readers a humorous look at the underbelly of lobbying and D.C. politics. The book follows Richard Brewster, an up-and-coming Washington lobbyist who creates a phony client to fast-track his career, and in the process exposes the absurdity of modern politics. From irreverent legislation to pro wrestlers at Congressional hearings, Spees takes readers on a ride that is too real and too funny.

Buddy Dyer, Mayor of Orlando, Florida offered a blurb for the book, writing:

“‘Capitol Gains’ is a very funny novel. Rick Spees has taken his decades of lobbying experience to create a lovable but corrupt lobbyist in Richard Brewster—ambitious, willing to bend a few rules, never telling a direct lie but never quite conveying the whole truth, fast and loose with money. It all goes quite well until Brewster is on top of the world. Then reality sets in. I couldn’t put it down until I saw how Brewster survived his roller-coaster ride.”

While he is beginning his career as a novelist, Spees has a long and distinguished legal career, having served as chair of Akerman’s Government Affairs and Public Policy Practice, among other accomplishments. Prior to private practice, Spees served in a number of positions in the U.S. Senate, including three years as the staff director and chief counsel of the Appropriations Subcommittee on the Departments of Commerce, Justice, State, Judiciary, and Related Agencies. He also served on the Senate Judiciary Committee and as a legislative assistant to former Senator Paul Laxalt (R-Nevada).

“Capitol Gains” is available in hard and soft cover on Amazon, Barnes and Nobles and Target, as well as e-book. For more information visit rickspees.com.
