

Speaking Engagements

Robyn Neely and Michael Larson to Present on Opening Panel at Florida Remediation Conference

November 4, 2025

8:30 AM – 10:00 AM ET

Rosen Centre Hotel
9840 International Drive
Orlando, FL

Robyn Neely, Chair of Akerman’s Environment and Natural Resources Practice, will moderate the opening session titled “Rewriting the Rules: Institutional Controls, PFAS Accountability and Florida’s Brownfields Surge” at the 30th Florida Remediation Conference. Florida’s remediation and redevelopment landscape is evolving rapidly, with new legislation, innovative legal strategies, and updated institutional control practices reshaping the path forward. This opening session will provide a multifaceted view of the latest policy, legal, and regulatory developments that are driving change.

Additionally, Akerman Partner Michael Larson will be a panelist on the “Rewriting the Rules” panel and will offer analysis of the sweeping statutory changes to Florida’s Brownfields laws in 2025, including streamlined site closure pathways, expanded participation for federally regulated sites, elimination of outdated mapping requirements, and elimination of certain job creation requirements for select projects.

Related People

Michael J. Larson
Robyn D. Neely

Related Work

Environment and Natural Resources

Related Offices

Orlando
Tallahassee

Akerman is a proud sponsor of the event. Attendees include regulators, engineers, consultants, contractors, technology providers, and site owners who will gain first-hand insights into evolving federal and state regulations, innovative remediation technologies, and emerging contaminants such as PFAS.

Register

Click here to register for this event.