Audrey Bidwell focuses her practice on federal tax controversy and tax planning matters. She represents individuals, partnerships, large entities, and tax-exempt organizations in federal tax examinations, appeals, and litigation before the U.S. Tax Court and federal district courts in disputes involving income tax deficiencies, penalties, and valuation issues.

Audrey negotiates and resolves complex IRS and state tax collection matters, including Offers in Compromise, installment agreements, and lien and levy releases. She also advises clients on available tax credits and incentive programs, including R&D credits, investment credits, energy incentives, and job creation incentives.
