Akerman Continues Chicago Office Growth with Commercial Litigator Mark Bernstein

April 8, 2016

Firm Enhances Core Strengths in Financial Services and Securities Litigation

Akerman LLP, a top 100 U.S. law firm serving clients across the Americas, today welcomed partner Mark Bernstein as a member of the Litigation Practice Group in Chicago. His practice enhances Akerman's core strength in complex commercial litigation within the financial services and securities sectors. He is the fourth partner to join the Chicago office since Akerman announced in January its plan to more than double its physical footprint in the region.

"Mark has a successful track record representing investment funds, securities issuers and money managers in a range of complex business disputes, including significant class action defense work for large institutional clients," said Lawrence Rochefort, Litigation Practice Group Chair. "His experience adds to our bench strength in the Chicago market as well as our national capabilities in the financial services and securities sectors."

Bernstein's commercial litigation practice focuses on financial services litigation and class action defense. He also has significant experience with securities fraud litigation, repurchase agreements, derivatives including futures and options, claims against lenders, alternative dispute resolution and litigation
