Akerman Real Estate Report Findings on Senior Housing Reported by Long-Term Living

June 3, 2015

The Akerman U.S. Real Estate Industry Outlook Survey was featured in the Long-Term Living Magazine article titled, “Senior housing a hot market: Report.” The article analyzed how senior living will be one of the most popular aspects of multifamily housing in the coming years, as per the Akerman Survey. Executives believe that the multifamily sector will continue to lead commercial real estate through the economic recovery, of which senior-living facilities account for 17 percent of that activity. The article also reported on the Akerman Survey’s predictions of growth within the senior housing sector, specifically independent living, due to it having few regulatory barriers.
