Neisen Kasdin Featured in Daily Business Review for Legacy Role in Miami's Rise as Leading Metropolis

October 19, 2017

Miami Office Managing Partner Neisen Kasdin was featured in a Daily Business Review article titled, "Akerman Partner Neisen Kasdin Is All About Sustainable Communities," recounting his 30-plus year legacy as a leading force behind several transformative projects that have shaped Miami into a thriving, global city. Kasdin discussed with the publication how he grew passionate about creating sustainable communities marked by great developments, both as a leader in the public sector during his tenure as mayor of Miami Beach, as well as a lawyer advising top developers and investors.

"I like to think there is a consistent thread that runs through my work from the time I was in the public sector to the private sector in terms of, without sounding corny about it, building quality, sustainable neighborhoods and communities," Kasdin told the publication. "I love city building and transforming cities and helping create great neighborhoods and great projects, which are a part of creating great neighborhoods."
