News Networks Highlight Pedro Freyre as National Authority on U.S.-Cuba Policies

January 1, 2015

Pedro Freyre, International Practice Chair, appeared on numerous national newscasts, providing insight on the shift of U.S.-Cuba diplomatic relations. As the world looks at the recent White House announcement for cues on business opportunities and beyond, Freyre explained the greatest potential lies in agriculture, construction, financial services, healthcare, as well as telecommunications industries. He also recommended businesses and entrepreneurs exercise cautious optimism while the two countries slowly open up travel and business opportunities. The news networks that interviewed Freyre include Fox Business, Reuters and NPR, among others.

Reuters: “Analysts Weigh Economic Implications of Renewed U.S.-Cuban Relations”

Fox Business: “GOP Coming into Power a Good Sign for the Markets?”

NPR: “For Cuban-Americans, a Mixture of Hope, Betrayal”
