Ayman Rizkalla Talks Corporate Liability in Federal News Network Podcast

June 3, 2019

Ayman Rizkalla participated in a roundtable discussion on Federal News Network's What's Working in Washington podcast, where he talked about corporate liability and the fiduciary responsibilities of boards in public companies.

Rizkalla commented, "As public corporations get larger and larger, and they have separate business units, the board acts as almost as an oversight to make sure that all the business units, all information from business units, are flowing into one central location, i.e. the C-suite, and management, that they're not acting in conflict with one another."
