"Law360: What are your goals for the firm over the next five years?

Meyers: There are two categories. One would be external and the other would be internal. Focusing on external objectives, I see us continuing what I would characterize as our client-driven smart growth strategy. We will continue to grow in the markets where we are. From an internal perspective, we'll continue what I would characterize as our focus on a high-trust culture. It requires having an environment where you have very credible leadership, very open and honest, accessible, available leadership."
