David Blum elaborated on the efforts by tax professionals to conduct audits amid the COVID-19 pandemic in an article by Law360. The article points out that state tax agencies are scrambling to adapt to an environment where in-person contact is not an option, opting to conducting audits virtually.

Blum spoke about the logistics tax professionals are currently facing. “Oftentimes you have a director of tax instructing the IT people to provide a data dump in a secure website, a secure link. And then the auditor uploads the link.”
