Jamie Shyman is a partner in Akerman's Litigation Practice Group with significant experience in New York federal and state courts at both the trial and appellate levels. Jamie focuses her practice on representing clients in an array of staffing, global procurement, supply chain, and commercial contract matters, including litigating breach of contract, vendor disputes, and business torts. As a member of Akerman's Staffing Law sector, Jamie litigates and resolves disputes relating to complex commercial debt collections.

In addition to having in-depth litigation, arbitration, and mediation experience, Jamie regularly counsels clients on various commercial contract matters, accounts receivables collections, vendor master services agreements, and related negotiations with a focus on risk mitigation and dispute preparedness. Jamie's clients include staffing companies, the procurement divisions of large financial institutions, global teleperformance companies, and digital/internet partners. Her creative and business-minded approach has resulted in early dispute resolutions and renewal of vendor relationships for many of her clients.
